Medical examiners were unable to determine Monday what caused the in-flight death of a 44-year-old man traveling to Chicago Sunday night. Michael Clark, of Walla Walla, Wash., was flying into O'Hare International Airport on Delta Flight 1172 from Salt Lake City when the plane hit an air pocket near Chicago and he apparently had a heart attack or a seizure, police said.

Authorities said a doctor on the plane tried to help Clark after his attack during the approach to Chicago. Chicago Fire Department paramedics worked on him after the plane landed at O'Hare International Airport at 9:11 p.m., police said, but he was unresponsive. He was taken to Resurrection Hospital in Chicago, where he was pronounced dead at 10:16 p.m.
